

It is essential that the Canadian government consult information professionals, in particular archivists and records managers, about how to support and maintain digital content. Archivists are at the centre of these issues and work to preserve content and metadata. Migration to different platforms will be a constant issue, and archivists are the experts in this regard. The processes and considerations go beyond the IT field.