

Kids love to tell stories. Encourage schools to introduce creative writing segments in their English classes at appropriate levels. All topics must be drawn from Canadian subject matter and personal experiences. This can be promoted by supporting schools that introduce such programs with funds to buy computers for the creative writing classes. This would help to develop literacy, interest in things Canadian, computer skills, and nurture budding writers.