

Vloggers in general are still not taken seriously by the traditional forms of media. Investments from the public and the private sector as well as network sessions between vloggers and media professionals would be a great way to promote Canadian content in a Digital World